

2017 英语 (一) Part A · Text 4

文章主题	通读后用一句话自行概括
限时阶段	18-22 分钟：先看题干，不看选项；读文不查词
笔译阶段	按段笔译、按段核对；先写粗译，不追求参考译文式中文
重做阶段	全文核对完成后，统一重做 36-40 题
第二天	遮住译文重读、重做题、复查错因与替换词

连续干净原文用于真实检测；笔译原文用于逐段输出；原文修改页用于在英文上订正。答案与解析请对照纸质版。

限时第一读：先看 5 个英文题干，不看选项

No.	Question stem - English only	Signal
36	The underlined sentence (Para. 1) most probably shows that the court
37	According to Paragraph 4, an official act is deemed corruptive only if it involves
38	The court's ruling is based on the assumption that public officials are
39	Well-enforced laws in government transparency are needed to
40	The author's attitude toward the court's ruling is

标出生词但不停下；标出转折/因果/让步；读到相关段落才回来看选项。

我的英文题干导航标记

干净原文 A：限时读文

现在开始计时。此处没有结构、词义或逻辑提示；读到相应段落，就做相应题目。

[P1] In a rare unanimous ruling, the US Supreme Court has overturned the corruption conviction of a former Virginia governor, Robert McDonnell. But it did so while holding its nose at the ethics of his conduct, which included accepting gifts such as a Rolex watch and a Ferrari automobile from a company seeking access to government.

[P2] The high court's decision said the judge in Mr. McDonnell's trial failed to tell a jury that it must look only at his "official acts," or the former governor's decisions on "specific" and "unsettled" issues related to his duties.

[P3] Merely helping a gift-giver gain access to other officials, unless done with clear intent to pressure those officials, is not corruption, the justices found.

[P4] The court did suggest that accepting favors in return for opening doors is "distasteful" and "nasty." But under anti-bribery laws, proof must be made of concrete benefits, such as approval of a contract or regulation. Simply arranging a meeting, making a phone call, or hosting an event is not an "official act."

[P5] The court's ruling is legally sound in defining a kind of favoritism that is not criminal. Elected leaders must be allowed to help supporters deal with bureaucratic problems without fear of prosecution for bribery. "The basic compact underlying representative government," wrote Chief Justice John Roberts for the court, "assumes that public officials will hear from their constituents and act on their concerns."

[P6] But the ruling reinforces the need for citizens and their elected representatives, not the courts, to ensure equality of access to government. Officials must not be allowed to play favorites in providing information or in arranging meetings simply because an individual or group provides a campaign donation or a personal gift. This type of integrity requires well-enforced laws in government transparency, such as records of official meetings, rules on lobbying, and information about each elected leader's source of wealth.

[P7] Favoritism in official access can fan public perceptions of corruption. But it is not always corruption. Rather officials must avoid double standards, or different types of access for average people and the wealthy. If connections can be bought, a basic premise of democratic society—that all are equal in treatment by government—is undermined. Good governance rests on an understanding of the inherent worth of each individual.

[P8] The court's ruling is a step forward in the struggle against both corruption and official favoritism.

2.2

第一次做题：作答 36-40 题

现在才看选项。先独立完成五道题；需要时回原文定位。

36. The underlined sentence (Para. 1) most probably shows that the court

- [A] made no compromise in convicting McDonnell.
- [B] avoided defining the extent of McDonnell's duties.
- [C] was contemptuous of McDonnell's conduct.
- [D] refused to comment on McDonnell's ethics.

37. According to Paragraph 4, an official act is deemed corruptive only if it involves

- [A] concrete returns for gift-givers.
- [B] sizable gains in the form of gifts.
- [C] leaking secrets intentionally.
- [D] breaking contracts officially.

38. The court's ruling is based on the assumption that public officials are

- [A] allowed to focus on the concerns of their supporters.
- [B] qualified to deal independently with bureaucratic issues.
- [C] justified in addressing the needs of their constituents.
- [D] exempt from conviction on the charge of favoritism.

39. Well-enforced laws in government transparency are needed to

- [A] awaken the conscience of officials.
- [B] allow for certain kinds of lobbying.
- [C] guarantee fair play in official access.
- [D] inspire hopes in average people.

40. The author's attitude toward the court's ruling is

- [A] sarcastic.
- [B] tolerant.
- [C] skeptical.
- [D] supportive.

3.1

第 1 段：逐句笔译与原文订正

直接在英文上标记主干和逻辑；长句留两行，短句留一行。

S1 In a rare unanimous ruling, the US Supreme Court has overturned the corruption conviction of a former Virginia governor, Robert McDonnell.

S2 But it did so while holding its nose at the ethics of his conduct, which included accepting gifts such as a Rolex watch and a Ferrari automobile from a company seeking access to government.

本段英语原文（按句分行）

S1 In a rare unanimous ruling, the US Supreme Court has overturned the corruption conviction of a former Virginia governor, Robert McDonnell.

S2 But it did so while holding its nose at the ethics of his conduct, which included accepting gifts such as a Rolex watch and a Ferrari automobile from a company seeking access to government.

段落中心思想 (用一句话概括)

3.2

第 2 段：逐句笔译与原文订正

直接在英文上标记主干和逻辑；长句留两行，短句留一行。

S1 The high court's decision said the judge in Mr.

S2 McDonnell's trial failed to tell a jury that it must look only at his "official acts," or the former governor's decisions on "specific" and "unsettled" issues related to his duties.

本段英语原文（按句分行）

S1 The high court's decision said the judge in Mr.

S2 McDonnell's trial failed to tell a jury that it must look only at his "official acts," or the former governor's decisions on "specific" and "unsettled" issues related to his duties.

段落中心思想（用一句话概括）

3.3

第 3 段：逐句笔译与原文订正

直接在英文上标记主干和逻辑；长句留两行，短句留一行。

S1 Merely helping a gift-giver gain access to other officials, unless done with clear intent to pressure those officials, is not corruption, the justices found.

本段英语原文（按句分行）

S1 Merely helping a gift-giver gain access to other officials, unless done with clear intent to pressure those officials, is not corruption, the justices found.

段落中心思想 (用一句话概括)

第 4 段：逐句笔译与原文订正

S1 The court did suggest that accepting favors in return for opening doors is "distasteful" and "nasty." But under anti-bribery laws, proof must be made of concrete benefits, such as approval of a contract or regulation.

S2 Simply arranging a meeting, making a phone call, or hosting an event is not an "official act."

S1 The court did suggest that accepting favors in return for opening doors is "distasteful" and "nasty." But under anti-bribery laws, proof must be made of concrete benefits, such as approval of a contract or regulation.

S2 Simply arranging a meeting, making a phone call, or hosting an event is not an "official act."

段落中心思想（用一句话概括）

3.5

第 5 段：逐句笔译与原文订正

直接在英文上标记主干和逻辑；长句留两行，短句留一行。

S1 The court's ruling is legally sound in defining a kind of favoritism that is not criminal.

S2 Elected leaders must be allowed to help supporters deal with bureaucratic problems without fear of prosecution for bribery.

S3 "The basic compact underlying representative government," wrote Chief Justice John Roberts for the court, "assumes that public officials will hear from their constituents and act on their concerns."

本段英语原文 (按句分行)

S1 The court's ruling is legally sound in defining a kind of favoritism that is not criminal.

S2 Elected leaders must be allowed to help supporters deal with bureaucratic problems without fear of prosecution for bribery.

S3 "The basic compact underlying representative government," wrote Chief Justice John Roberts for the court, "assumes that public officials will hear from their constituents and act on their concerns."

段落中心思想 (用一句话概括)

第 6 段：逐句笔译与原文订正

S1 But the ruling reinforces the need for citizens and their elected representatives, not the courts, to ensure equality of access to government.

S2 Officials must not be allowed to play favorites in providing information or in arranging meetings simply because an individual or group provides a campaign donation or a personal gift.

S3 This type of integrity requires well-enforced laws in government transparency, such as records of official meetings, rules on lobbying, and information about each elected leader's source of wealth.

S1 But the ruling reinforces the need for citizens and their elected representatives, not the courts, to ensure equality of access to government.

S2 Officials must not be allowed to play favorites in providing information or in arranging meetings simply because an individual or group provides a campaign donation or a personal gift.

S3 This type of integrity requires well-enforced laws in government transparency, such as records of official meetings, rules on lobbying, and information about each elected leader's source of wealth.

段落中心思想（用一句话概括）

3.7

第 7 段：逐句笔译与原文订正

直接在英文上标记主干和逻辑；长句留两行，短句留一行。

S1 Favoritism in official access can fan public perceptions of corruption.

S2 But it is not always corruption.

S3 Rather officials must avoid double standards, or different types of access for average people and the wealthy.

S4 If connections can be bought, a basic premise of democratic society-that all are equal in treatment by government-is undermined.

S5 Good governance rests on an understanding of the inherent worth of each individual.

本段英语原文（按句分行）

S1 Favoritism in official access can fan public perceptions of corruption.

S2 But it is not always corruption.

S3 Rather officials must avoid double standards, or different types of access for average people and the wealthy.

S4 If connections can be bought, a basic premise of democratic society-that all are equal in treatment by government-is undermined.

S5 Good governance rests on an understanding of the inherent worth of each individual.

段落中心思想（用一句话概括）

3.8

第 8 段：逐句笔译与原文订正

直接在英文上标记主干和逻辑；长句留两行，短句留一行。

S1 The court's ruling is a step forward in the struggle against both corruption and official favoritism.

本段英语原文（按句分行）

S1 The court's ruling is a step forward in the struggle against both corruption and official favoritism.

段落中心思想 (用一句话概括)

4

全文核对后：正式重做 36-40 题

再次独立作答。只看题干和选项；需要时回原文圈出定位句。

36. The underlined sentence (Para. 1) most probably shows that the court

- [A] made no compromise in convicting McDonnell.
- [B] avoided defining the extent of McDonnell's duties.
- [C] was contemptuous of McDonnell's conduct.
- [D] refused to comment on McDonnell's ethics.

37. According to Paragraph 4, an official act is deemed corruptive only if it involves

- [A] concrete returns for gift-givers.
- [B] sizable gains in the form of gifts.
- [C] leaking secrets intentionally.
- [D] breaking contracts officially.

38. The court's ruling is based on the assumption that public officials are

- [A] allowed to focus on the concerns of their supporters.
- [B] qualified to deal independently with bureaucratic issues.
- [C] justified in addressing the needs of their constituents.
- [D] exempt from conviction on the charge of favoritism.

39. Well-enforced laws in government transparency are needed to

- [A] awaken the conscience of officials.
- [B] allow for certain kinds of lobbying.
- [C] guarantee fair play in official access.
- [D] inspire hopes in average people.

40. The author's attitude toward the court's ruling is

- [A] sarcastic.
- [B] tolerant.
- [C] skeptical.
- [D] supportive.

5 原文 D：选项定位勾画

全篇核读后再读一遍原文；直接圈画每道题的定位句、关键词和同义替换。

[P1] In a rare unanimous ruling, the US Supreme Court has overturned the corruption conviction of a former Virginia governor, Robert McDonnell. But it did so while holding its nose at the ethics of his conduct, which included accepting gifts such as a Rolex watch and a Ferrari automobile from a company seeking access to government.

[P2] The high court's decision said the judge in Mr. McDonnell's trial failed to tell a jury that it must look only at his "official acts," or the former governor's decisions on "specific" and "unsettled" issues related to his duties.

[P3] Merely helping a gift-giver gain access to other officials, unless done with clear intent to pressure those officials, is not corruption, the justices found.

[P4] The court did suggest that accepting favors in return for opening doors is "distasteful" and "nasty." But under anti-bribery laws, proof must be made of concrete benefits, such as approval of a contract or regulation. Simply arranging a meeting, making a phone call, or hosting an event is not an "official act."

[P5] The court's ruling is legally sound in defining a kind of favoritism that is not criminal. Elected leaders must be allowed to help supporters deal with bureaucratic problems without fear of prosecution for bribery. "The basic compact underlying representative government," wrote Chief Justice John Roberts for the court, "assumes that public officials will hear from their constituents and act on their concerns."

[P6] But the ruling reinforces the need for citizens and their elected representatives, not the courts, to ensure equality of access to government. Officials must not be allowed to play favorites in providing information or in arranging meetings simply because an individual or group provides a campaign donation or a personal gift. This type of integrity requires well-enforced laws in government transparency, such as records of official meetings, rules on lobbying, and information about each elected leader's source of wealth.

[P7] Favoritism in official access can fan public perceptions of corruption. But it is not always corruption. Rather officials must avoid double standards, or different types of access for average people and the wealthy. If connections can be bought, a basic premise of democratic society—that all are equal in treatment by government—is undermined. Good governance rests on an understanding of the inherent worth of each individual.

[P8] The court's ruling is a step forward in the struggle against both corruption and official favoritism.

全文压缩与第二天复读

段落	段落功能	一句话压缩（自己写）
P1
P2
P3
P4
P5
P6
P7
P8

- ☐ 我能用 30 秒说清全文主线：
- ☐ 我能遮住答案重做 36-40：
- ☐ 我仍会错 / 不顺的点：
- ☐ 下次遇到相似结构，我要先看：